OFSO SERVICES WITH RESPECT TO BANKS AND NON-BANK FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS

The Office of the Financial Services Ombudsman (OFSO) was established by the Central Bank in conjunction with the Banks, Non-Bank Financial Institutions and Insurance Companies to investigate complaints from individuals and small businesses with respect to services provided by these financial institutions. The aim of the OFSO is to render impartial and prompt resolution to complaints that customers have not been able to resolve satisfactorily with their financial institutions.

A small business is defined as one which possesses assets, excluding the value of land and buildings, up to a value of TT$1,500,000.00 at the time of the matter that gave rise to the complaint.

SCOPE OF SERVICES

The OFSO can consider complaints about a wide range of products and services offered by commercial banks and non-bank financial institutions. Such products and services include but are not limited to:

- Deposit Accounts;
- Loan Accounts;
- Investment Services;
- Trust Accounts; and
- Mutual Funds.

LIMITATION IN SCOPE OF SERVICES

A complaint must not be related to:

- General rate of interest offered or charged;
- Fees and charges;
- Risk management policies or pricing of the products;
- Any transaction that has occurred prior to January 1, 2003, if it relates to a banking matter; or
- Any transaction that has occurred prior to January 1, 2008, if it relates to a non-bank financial institution matter.

JURISDICTION

The OFSO is not a court of law. The process is relatively informal and decisions are based on four basic criteria:

- Overall fairness and equity;
- Best practice;
- Accepted industry standards and codes of conduct, and
- Due regard to the law.

The authority of the Financial Services Ombudsman (FSO) is limited to complaints pertaining only to the Trinidad and Tobago operations of the commercial banks and their licenced financial subsidiaries, as well as the non-bank financial institutions.

The recommendations of the FSO are not binding except when an award is made by the FSO and accepted by the customer.

The customer does not surrender his/her legal rights and is free, at any time, to explore other options for resolution of his/her complaint including taking the matter to court.

BEFORE LODGING A COMPLAINT

Before the FSO will consider a complaint, the following procedures must be followed:

- The complainant must refer the matter to the branch of the bank or non-bank financial institution at which the complaint arose;
- If not satisfied, the matter may be referred to the dispute resolution office at the Head Office of the bank or non-bank financial institution;
- If still not satisfied at this level, or the matter is not resolved within two months, then the matter may be taken to the OFSO.

WHAT HAPPENS AT THE OFSO

- The complaint must be on the prescribed form and signed by the complainant and his/her authorized representative, if any; the form includes an agreement giving authority to the bank or non-bank financial institution to exchange confidential information with the OFSO to conduct its investigation.
- If the OFSO determines that the complaint falls within its jurisdiction, all attempts will be made to settle the dispute by mediation between the two parties.
- If no agreement is reached, then a full investigation will begin into the matter, leading to the making of a recommendation and/or finally to an award by the FSO to settle the matter.

Awards can be for instructions to the bank or non-bank financial institution to rectify the matter and/or for a payment as compensation for loss suffered by the customer, but the amount of the award is limited to a maximum of $500,000.00.

DEADLINE

A complainant must submit his/her complaint to the OFSO within six months of the bank's or non-bank financial institution's final proposal to resolve the matter.

CAN SOMEONE COMPLAIN ON YOUR BEHALF?

A complainant may ask a representative to file a complaint on his/her behalf. However, both the complainant and the representative must sign the prescribed complaint form in the appropriate spaces provided. Such representative may include a broker, a relative, a power of attorney and need not be an attorney-at-law.

CONFIDENTIALITY

All personal information received from a complainant or his/her bank or non-bank financial institution will be handled with the utmost confidentiality, except in the case of the Central Bank which may use the information for the purposes of regulatory or supervisory oversight.
